

The Barn Croft Bulletin

Dear Parents & Carer,

The first transition afternoon went very well this week - it is lovely that the children and the adults have more time to get to know each other before the holidays this year. The next one will be on Thursday 14th July and the final one will be Tuesday 19th July. Please talk to your child about these transition times and let us know if there are any children who are showing any signs of anxiety around the changes for September at home in case we have not seen the signs in school. That way we can do some more individual work with them to help them.

Teachers have been busy writing the children's end of year reports and we hope to send them out to all parents on Tuesday 19th July via Parentmail.

Next week we are expecting some beautiful weather but this means some quite high temperatures and lots of sun. Can we remind you to send your child into school in a sun hat and to apply sun cream? We will ensure that classrooms are kept as cool as possible and will take every opportunity to work outside in the shade and to give children lots of water breaks and rest breaks to help them cope. We are assessing the temperatures daily in order to risk assess any class trips into central London etc next week. We do not want children to be travelling in severe heat and all the problems that can bring. We will send out text messages the night before a trip if we feel we need to postpone it.

Last day of Term is Thursday 21st July at 2pm. Please ensure to collect your child at 2pm as there will be no Tea Time Club on that day.

Have a wonderful weekend!
